The Perpetrator of Fourteen Murders Killed by a Spanish Gambler—One of His Victims Slain in Louisville.

New York World's Mazatlan (Mexico) letter of Oct. 22.

An Englishman named Tom Adams, who for the past eight or ten years has owned a low tavern and dance house in this place, and gained general notoriety as a desperate character, died on the 15th instant from the effects of a pistol-shot wound received in a fight several months ago. Just before his death, when assured that his doom was inevitable, he sent for Capt. Verplank, the American commercial agent at this port, and intimated that he had some important disclosures to make, which he desired should be giv enpublicity in the Eastern States. Capt. Verplank, having consented to comply with his wishes and take down whatever statements he had to make in writing, the dying man unburdened his conscience by confessing himself guilty of fourteen murders, all but one of which were committed in the United States and Canada. Adams commenced his narrative by stating that his proper name was George Worley, and that he was a native of Manchester, England. He commenced his career of crime by murdering the second mate of the American ship Cultivator, in the Liverpool docks, about the year 1854. After this deed he went to Canada, and roved about through those provinces for two years in pursuit of robbery. In the year 1855, at which time he was known by the name of Orton, he was engaged as a sailor on the lakes. While lying in the American port of Oswego he murdered a man, whom he understood to be a painter, by throwing him over a bridge. He met his victim in a drinking saloon, where he went to collect a bill of the proprietor, and followed him until the opportunity, was favorable, when he struck him down with a slung-shot and disposed of the body in the way mentioned.

After this Adams returned to Canada, and assumed the name of Townsend. With two accomplices he commenced a campaign of robbery, and perpetrated four murders in the country west of Toronto, ending with the killing of a sheriff a few miles west of Niagara river. That country then became too warm for him, in consequence of the offerings of large rewards for his arrest, and he escaped on board a schooner passing through the Canadian canal to the American port of Toledo. From this port he went to Chicago, and committed three murders in that place during the same summer. One of his victims was a captain of a vessel, whom he followed from the St. Charles saloon; another was a German saloon-keeper, whom he killed in his bed at night, in his place of business, which was situated near a railroad depot, and the third was some man unknown to him, whom he murdered after leaving a brothel. After these crimes he was arrested in Chicago, tried and convicted of a burglary, and served a term of three years in the Illinois State Prison. On obtaining his release Adams went to New York, where he remained about one year, during which time he committed two murders, both of his victims in that city being men unknown to him. One was a countryman whom he enticed to the outskirts of the city and obtained about $2,000 on his body. After leaving New York he was engaged in a series of robberies through the Southern States. He returned to Baltimore and murdered a prostitute in that city. Subsequently he committed a murder in Louisville and one in Memphis, but of the names of his victims he had no knowledge.

Adams left New Orleans obout the time of the war and went to Vera Cruz. From thence he went to the city of Mexico, and came to Mazatlan about ten years ago. Since his sojourn here he was widely known and generally feared, his place being one of the most notorious rendezvous of desperate characters on the coast. He finally met his fate at the hands of a Spanish gambler, named Gonzales, in a drunken quarrel over a throw of dice. He leaves between $15,000 and $18,000, in cash or its equivalent, as the result of his career of atrocious crime, which he has willed to a sister supposed to be his only living relative, who resides at Sheffield, England. The legatee needs to be devoid of any superstitious scruples to receive and enjoy such a blood-clotted legacy.

He went out between the acts, and returned vigorously chewing a clove. His wife asked him where he had been and he said, "To see a friend." She camily replied that she thought his friend must be dead, as she could smell his bier.

A party of young men were out serenading a few nights since. They sat on the pavement, which had been recently paved with a tar solution. Next morning the rear of six pair of pants dotted the walk, and music is heard no more around that cottage.

We must go to Christ on our bended knees; for though He is big door enough for the greatest sinner to come in, He is a door so low that men must stoop if they would be saved.—[Spurgeon.

MARRIED, BUT NOT A WIFE.

An Iowa Attorney Sends His Wife on a Visit and Weds a Young School Girl.

Dubuque Telegraph, Nov. 14.

Passengers from the west on the Illinois Central railroad this morning furnished our reporter with the particulars of an affair that has aroused the entire city of Waverly.

In that city is an attorney who has resided there and practiced his profession for eight years past. He is a middle aged man, and the father of a son aged 16 years. His family has hitherto occupied a good position in society, and he has been regarded as a very good citizen. About six months ago he began to cultivate the acquaintance of a very beautiful school-girl, a member of one of the best families in the city. Taking advantage of the many opportunities his position as a man of family afforded him, he cultivated the girl's acquaintance, and, after winning her confidence, commenced making love to her. He had himself grown very fond of the fresh, blooming young miss, who was about sixteen years of age. In order to have a clear field, he rid himself of his wife soon after falling in love with the girl, by pursuading her to visit her parents in the East. The unsuspecting partner of his joys and sorrows gladly accepted this proposal, and sincerely thanked her husband for his generosity. She promptly packed the usual number of Saratoga trunks that ladies carry, and bid her husband and family good-bye, little dreaming that she was thus aiding her treacherous spouse in his scheme of villainy. He managed to prolong the wife's visit by pleading hard times—money so scarce he could not raise enough to bring her home, etc. Meantime he was devoting every spare moment to his new inamorata, who evidently grew very fond of him, notwithstanding the disparity of ages. Yesterday afternoon, the attorney's wife having been absent nearly six months, he seated himself in a buggy and drove to the school which his girl-lover attended, reaching there just as school was out. He took the girl in the buggy with him, telling her companions he intended taking her out for a "little ride." The attorney drove direct to Butler county, procured a license, and married the girl. Immediately after the ceremony was preformed he drove back to Waverly, accompanied by the girl, who, though married, was no wife.—Arriving in town during the night, he at once proceeded to the residence of the girl's parents, and was met by the mother, who demanded very peremptorily to know where he had taken her daughter. He replied by showing her the marriage certificate. This enraged the mother, who, knowing the man's wife was still living, at once realized that her daughter had been deceived and imposed upon. She called for her husband; the girl's father, and the attorney, taking fright at the aspect of affairs, jumped into his buggy, leaving the girl at home, and drove off. In a short time neighbors were aroused, and the story of the attorney's perfidy soon spread over the entire city. The girl's father promptly obtained a warrant for the arrest of the scamp, which was placed in the hands of the sheriff, who mounted and proceeded in search of the attorney. The citizens were very indignant, and many of them volunteered to aid in the search. Great excitement prevailed when the train passed through. The man deceived the girl into marrying him by telling her he was legally separated from his wife. This is why the people are so indignant against him. No criminal intimany has ever existed between the two, and the girl may feel thankful that she escaped from the villian's clutches without any worse stain upon her name.

Genius rushes like a whirlwind—talent marches like a cavalcade of heavy men and heavy horses—cleverness skims like a swallow in the summer evening, with a sharp, shrill note and a sudden turning. The man of genius dwells with men and nature; the man of talent in his study, but the clever man dances here, there and everywhere, like a butterfly in a hurricane, striking everything and enjoying nothing, but too light to be dashed to pieces. The man of talent will attack theories, the clever man will assail the individual and slander private character. The man of genius despises both; he heeds none, he fears none, he lives in himself, shrouded in the consciousness of his own strength; he interferes with none, and walks forth an example that "eagles fly alone—they are but sheep that herd together." It is true, that should a poisonous worm cross his path he may tread it under his foot; but he will not, can not, attack the privacy of another. Clever men write verses, men of talent write prose, but the man of genius writes poetry.

A MOST NATURAL RESULT.—In the hearing of an Irish case for an assault and battery, a counsel, while cross-examining one witness, asked him what they had at the first place they stopped. "Four glasses of ale."—"What next?" "Two glasses of whiskey." "What next?" "One glass of brandy." "What next?" "A fight."

"Sponge baths" are recommended. The best way to get one is to go to some bath-room, take a bath, and tell the proprietor to charge it.

SLEEPING IN HER COFFIN.

A Visit to the Home of the Child Found to be Alive after Lying Three Days on Ice—A Case of Suspended Animation.

N. Y. Herald, Nov. 18.

The very singular circumstances connected with the supposed death of Bertha Miller, a child seven years old, at Yonkers, Westchester county, as related exclusively in the Herald of yesterday, form a case which is, perhaps, without a parallel in the wonder causing catalogue of sublinary phenomena. The fancied death of the little girl last Wednesday night, the laying out of the body and its being then placed on ice in a cold room, its remaining in that frigid state until Sunday afternoon, the surprise of the undertaker on finding it limp and pliable when transferring it from the ice coffin to the burial casket, the obsequies interrupted and a number of physicians called in, who, after various tests, found indications of animation, and accordingly gave the sorrowing parents reason to hope that their darling might yet cheat the King of Terrors of his prey—all these present a concatenation of facts which must leave the most approved extravagances of fiction far in the shade.

Although it appears that the doctors were satisfied from the scientific experiments which they effected on the child that the circulation of the blood was still going on to a limited extent, they were unable to utilize their professional skill in administering restoratives or in endeavoring to increase the action of the heart. In this extraordinary dilemma they were forced to content themselves by advising the parents not to attempt the burial of the child at present. Last evening a Herald representative called at the house of mourning and was invited into the humble abode of the child's parents, who occupy the upper floor of a small two-story frame building on Riverdale avenue. Neither the father nor mother of the ambiguous corpse was at home, the former, as the writer was told by one of those present, having gone to the village on some little errand, while the poor mother, who is almost worn out by constant watching day and night for nearly a week past in the hope of witnessing the dawn of returning consciousness in her child, had been prevailed upon to go and seek sleep in the house of a kind friend. In a neat coffin, resting upon a couple of lightly constructed trestles, such as are commonly used by mortuary men, lay the little girl, with a childishly placid and singularly sweet expression of features, the fringed eyelids resting lightly on the sightless orbs, the lips slightly parted and the little hands folded over the infantile bosom as though their owner was wrapped in a profound, peaceful slumber. Artificial flowers were strewn on the coffin lid, while an appropriate wreath of the same homely materials adorned the brow of the occupant.—The body is still soft, and the hands were found to be as yielding and supple as those of an infant in the enjoyment of good health. Although the child will to-night have remained in an apparently inanimate state for six days and nights, strange to say no indications of approaching decomposition or change of any other character can be detected, the corpse, if such it is, remaining as fresh as though death has only just occurred. A number of doctors from various sections of the country called to see the child yesterday, one of them puncturing the little one's side with a lance, but failing to draw blood. They all, however, agreed that it would be highly improper to bury the child at present, a conclusion in which the poor parents eagerly coincide. It is understand that little Bertha, when two years old, narrowly escaped being buried alive, she having remained in a simular state of apparent suspended animation for nine consecutive weeks.

The Yale Record tells a story about a recent graduate, whose name is hardly dry yet in the triennial catalogue, who armed himself with his diploma and started in search of a situation in the metropolis the other day. Having removed his diamond studs and donned his last year's hat, he sailed into a counting-house and begged the gray-haired serf to show him into the senior partner's office.—On coming into the presence of the baldheaded millionare he made an obsequious, we might say, a humiliating bow. He stated that he was in search of a situation. The man said: "Well, sir, what can you do?" Anything," replied our friend. "What salary do you expect?" was the next inquiry of the old buffer. "Oh, well, $4,200 will do." "Why my young man, I can get two thousand clerks, competent men at that, for five dollars a week." The graduate, at this stage of the game, pulled out his diploma and exclaimed: "You may not be aware of it, sir, but I am a graduate of Yale, and here is my diploma." If that is the case I do not want you at any price." The alumnus grew red in the face, and, turning to the old man, said: "Before I will work for five dollars a week I will chew air for nourishment on the front steps of the Fifth Avenue Hotel. Good morning."

A fellow who hid under a sofa at an unformal Boston missionary meeting, says that the thirty-five ladies spoke twice of the downtrodden heathen and more than a hundred times of a new kind of hair dye.

DEATH IN A PULPIT.

From the Washington Chronicle Nov. 9.

A scene was enacted yesterday during the services at the Methodist Episcopal Mission Church, on Twelfth street east, near Pennsylvania avenue, which will never be forgotten by the witnesses thereto.

The church was thronged as usual for the morning service, which commenced about 11 o'clock, and when the pastor, the Rev. Milton E. Hysore, entered the pulpit he announed to the congregation that he was suffering very much from inflammation of the throat, but proceeded at once with his sermon on the subject, "Word of Life." He was about half through his discourse when he suddenly remarked, "Brethren, I feel very sick," and clapping his right hand to his forehead as if in intense pain, exclaimed, "Jesus, save me, save me now," at the same time staggering backward and falling in a half-reclining position on a sofa. Many in the audience rushed forward to assist him, foremost among whom were his wife, who, lifting his head to her shoulder, asked, "Mr. Hysore, do you feel sick?" when he replied, "Yes," and sank back unconscious immediately. His teeth became clenched, and after dreadful muscular contortions, he breathed his last.

Drs. J. L. Adams and S. A. H. McKim were sent for at once, and upon their arrival pronounced congestion of the brain the cause of death.

Deceased was formerly a minister of the Methodist Protestant Church, and this was his first charge in the Methodist Episcopal ministry. He was not only beloved by his congregation, but by all who knew him.—He was a native of Baltimore, was 37 years old, and leaves a wife and one child.

How Webster Prepared His Speeches.

In one of the debates in Congress which suddenly called Daniel Webster to his feet, he made a brief but quite eloquent speech, apparently without any opportunity for previous preparation. In the course of his remarks he drew out the following sentence, which has ever since been admired as one of the most harmonious and expressive in the English language. He was speaking of our military conflict with Great Britain: "Our fathers raised their flag against a power to which, for purpose of foreign conquest and subjugation, Rome, in the hight of her glory, is not to be compared—a power which has dotted the surface of the whole globe with her possessions and military post; whose morning drum-beat, following the sun in its course and keeping pace with its hours, circles the earth with one continuous and unbroken strain of the martial airs of England."

As he sat down one of the Senators congratulated him upon his speech, and alluding to the above passage, said that to him it was inconceivable how Mr. Webster, in a speech so manifestly unpremeditated, could have formed so perfect and so beautiful a sentence, which with hours of study he could not improve. Mr. Webster replied that the passage was not extemporaneous; that in his summer vacation he visited Quebec, and while standing on the massive and almost impregnable citadel there, looking out upon the wondrous scene of national grandeur and of nature's loveliness spread before him, the idea occurred to his mind. He immediately took his seat upon a gun, and with pencil and paper sketched the thought in the most appropriate language he could at the moment command. Upon arriving at his hotel he sat down and re-wrote it, with many interlineations and erasures, until he had moulded it into the form of words which satisfied him. He then laid it aside in his retentive memory, to be used when the occasion should offer. The opportunity arose upon that day.

The Grass Widow.

There's a beautiful cloak of rich, rat-colored plush, and two dumplings of cheeks with a blush, and a fat little hand with a glove always new, and a lot of big rings which distinctly show through; and a small parasol, with the air of a flirt, and skirts always clean, though the street be all dirt, and these things all belong—like the song which I write—to the little grass widow who lives on our flight. Her eyes are like puddles of "Maynards and Noyes," but they sparkle like fire when she bows to the "boys;" and, O! how they dart from their depths a keen ray, when you meet her a shopping some fine frosty day! She fears not the wind and she fears not the snow, she fears but the prospects of missing a beau; and, O! when she meets one, her smile is a sight, the pretty grass widow who lives on our flight. One day she was sick, and expected to die, I sat by her side—we were both on the cry. When she choked down the tears, wiped them off with a curl, and murmured, "I'm glad that old Death ain't a girl. He's a rather slim pattern, of course, for a beau, but anything's better than nothing, you know; I wonder if flirting with him would be right," said the pretty grass widow who lives on our flight.

"Say a good thing and sit down," whispered the chairman to a long-winded stump orator. "That's just what I'm trying to do," says the speaker.

LEXINGTON'S OLD AGE.

From Scribner's Monthly for December.

Nine miles from Frankfort, on the road to Lexington, stands one of the finest and richest farms in Kentucky—that owned by Mr. Alexander. On this superb stock farm we saw three hundred blooded horses, ranging in rank from old Lexington, the monarch of the turf, to the kittenish and frisky yearling. Here also Mr. Alexander has collected $100,000 worth of cattle. We saw one diminutive heifer worth $27,000, and a variety of foreign creatures whose value seemed almost fabulous. On this farm are bred the great majority of fine trotting and running horses which appear in our parks during the running season. Mr. Alexander's estate, which is admirably stocked with fine farm-houses, barns, and stables, and which is more like a ducal manor than the ordinary American farm, extends over 3,200 acres.

Near by is old John Harper's modest farm of 2,000 acres. The roads, the stone walls, and the fine lawns covered with massive shade trees, make a series of delightful pictures. The annual sale of horses on the Alexander farm occurs in June. Only yearling colts are sold. Hundreds of people from all the country around, and from every State in the Union, flock to this sale. An immense barbecue is held, and high wassail marks the conclusion of the occasion.

We paid a respectful visit to old Lexington, the mighty sire of a mightier equine family. He is blind, a veteran of twenty-two, afflicted with goitre, and stood gazing in the direction from which our voices came, a melancholy wreck of his former greatness. The princess of the race course of the present galloped by, neighing and pawing the ground, as if annoyed at our presence. One of them named Asteroid, so far forgot his princely dignity as to charge incontinently upon the fence where we were seated.

The negro men who manage these erratic brutes undergo all sorts of perilous adventures, but they seem to possess as many lives as a cat, and, like the animal, always land on their feet, no matter how far the plunging and rearing horses may throw them.

The wonders of cable telegraphy are set forth in the following story, related by an associate agent of the New York Associated Press: A gentleman of the Western Union Telegraph office at No. 145 Broadway, New York, was sitting in the cable room when a dispatch from Philadelphia, destined for Paris, came over the wires. This message, like all others for France, was to go over the cable by way of Duxbury, Mass. The operator called Duxbury a few times, and then said: "The fellow is asleep, evidently; but the cable men are always awake—I'll have to get one of them to go in and wake him up." So he stepped to another desk, called Plaister Cove, in Newfoundland, and sent the following message. "To cable operator, Duxbury: Please go and wake up my own true love." This message Plaister Cove hastened to send across the ocean to Valencia, Ireland, who in turn, "rushed" it to London; thence it was hurried to Paris, and still onward to the European end of the French cable at St. Pierre; the operator there flashing it back to Duxbury. In less than two minutes by the clock the message had accomplished its journey of some eight thousand miles, by land and sea, as was evinced by the clicking of the instrument on the Duxbury desk, which ticked out in a manner a little more petulant: "That is a nice way to do; go ahead. Your own true love."

There is a class of persons in this world, by no means small, whose prominent peculiarity is whining. They whine because they are poor, or if rich, because they have no health to enjoy their riches; they whine because they "have no luck," and others' prosperity exceed theirs; they whine because some friends have died and they are still living; they whine because they have aches and pains, and they have aches and pains because they whine; and they whine, no one can tell why. Now a word to these whining persons: First,—stop whining—it is of no use complaining, fretting, fault finding, and whining. Why, you are the most deluded set of creatures that ever lived! Do you know that it is a well-settled principle of physiology and common sense that these habits are more exhausting to nervous vitality than almost any other violation of physiological law? And do you know that life is pretty much as you make it? You can make it bright and sun-shiny, or you can make it dark and shadowy. Then stop whining and fretting, and go on your way rejoicing.—[Exchange.

An Augusta hen-pecked husband closed his testimony in his action for divorce from his wife as follows: "I don't want to say anything agin the woman, Judge, but I wish you could live with her a little while, you'd think I had told the truth." The earnest sincerity of this appeal won for the poor man the decree he desired.

A physician recently gave a patient so much iron that he soon began to steal.

The Wedding Outfit of Mrs. F. D. G.

From the Washington Star.

One-half of the underclothing is of the finest linen and trimmed with hand-made embroidery; the rest of long cloth, with lace and linen trimming. The health suits or wrappers, vest and underwear are of the finest pink silk, the soft, rich, clinging fabric that is warmer and finer than worsted woven garments, made with a nicety of finish that marks all the English underwear. These are in two qualities, the heavy and light silk. Some are a faint pearl color, others a pale blue tint, then a suit of peach bloom, and then a deep flesh pink.

Next comes the hosiery, and this assortment is perhaps the most complete of all, since it comprises morning, dinner, reception, carriage, promenade, and evening hose. There are silk stockings in Bayadere stripes, pearl color and pink, blue and white, gray and blue, and other mode tints. Next came a most exquisite article in lace work, a beautiful silk called the sandal lace, with clocks. There are a dozen pairs of these in all the delicate colors, and at the financial value of $12 a pair. Then a pair of white silk, ground with blue and white or lilac and white raised dots. The next relay is a pale white, with embroidered instep and a fine silken mesh. Then the promenade called the perpendicular, the stripes being of that design. To a full supply of the above is added a quantity of Irish balbriggan of the finest quality manufactured.

The white wear comprised one dozen de nuit of fine linen, silk, Paris muslin, fine jaconet and Londsdale cambric, and one dozen of the best and smoothest long cloth; one dozen linen and cambrick and gross cloth chemises, and one dozen ordinary fine Wamsutta, one dozen linen and lawn and muslin embroidery corset covers, and two dozen pairs of underwear, of the same materials.

There are three dozen white underskirts and four very elegent robes de soir. The bridal corset was made of a a piece of the white satin of the bridal dress. It had 100 bones in it, and was stitched with blue silk. A white silk corset was covered with a delicate tissue of Mechlin lace. A blue satin corset, stitched in white, and a pale lavender, stitched in blue, were among the orders, and a lace coutil completed the list. Sachets of costly and delicate perfume were stitched into the bosoms of each and lent a delicious odor.

The three dozen skirts spoken of did not include a single trained or full dress jupon. There are a dozen of those, and they are wonders of art.—Puffings and embroidery alternated with tucks and ruffles. It took a whole week to laundry them, and four women working every moment with fluting scissor and embroidery irons. The room that was devoted to them looked as if a bevy of headless ghosts had entered it for a masquerade.

Entertaining Friends.

"Having company" is a great dread in some households. Indeed, it is the equivalent of a small revolution. The sunshine has to be let into the best room in itself a revolutionary procedure; the best silver which if it were used and enjoyed every day, would always be ready for the use of guests, must be taken out of its wraps and polished; every best thing must be marshaled into its place for duty, and then followed a campaign in the pantry, which results in many kinds of cake and pastry and a very heated, tired hostess. The announcement that "company is coming by the afternoon train" very naturally and properly sends the thoughts of the house-keeper flying over the house and into her store-closets to see if everything is right for the comfort of her guests. But in a house where the living is graduated on a reasonable scale—the scale, for instance, of "plain living and high thinking" the getting ready for company is never a formidable matter.

It is reduced to airing and sunning the guest chamber, and putting a fresh flower into its vase, and making sure that there is enough in preparation of the ordinary bill of fare of the family. Plain living does not imply poor food carelessly prepared; rather, the most foodful food, a few kinds at a meal, such as will not savor of dyspepsia, nor of the hostess' fatigue.—Doubtless this sounds very inhospitable to the housekeeper accustomed to graduate her plans according to a widely different scale; but we must maintain that hospitality is robbed of half its sweetness when the stomach of the guest receives consideration above his head and his heart. If you are poor, or in moderate circumstances, you can not afford to add expensive luxuries to your table, and so hospitality becomes a burden; if you are rich, you have at your command resources that make the others unnecessary. If your guest love you, it is yourself that attracts him; if he love you not, let him buy of those whose business it is to sell cakes and confections.

THE COAL ROAD.

A conference was held between the Board of Directors of the Coal Road and a committee of the citizens of Cynthiana, consisting of Judge West, Col. Ward, J. Q. Ward, H. E. Shawhan, J. W. Peck, T. A. Frazer, C. B. Cook, Jno. Lake, and others, commencing Wednesday evening and ending Friday noon, resulting in a satisfactory arrangement for all the parties concerned.

The Board of Directors first offered to create a Northern and Southern division, each to be operated independently by the parties constructing it, and pro rate freights, and the stockholders of the Northern division to at first subscribe $20,000 to the Southern division so as to complete twenty miles into the coal fields at once.—This was rejected by the Cynthiana committee, they wishing to come in as common stockholders with all the stockholders here.

The Board then agreed to make an order to extend the Coal Road so as to connect with the Kentucky Central at Cynthiana, and to open the books for the additional subscription of four thousand five hundred shares to its capital stock, and requiring of the company, should a mortgage be made upon its road, that the first stockholders might at their option convert their stock into bonds. This was also rejected.

The board then so modified the order as to extend the road to Cynthiana, and to open the books for the additional subscription of four thousand five hundred shares, and the Cynthiana stockholders to stand upon terms of equality with the Mt. Sterling stockholders. By this arrangement the road will be completed from Mt. Sterling into the coal fields, twenty miles, first, after which the road will be built to Cynthiana. The Cynthiana stock will furnish three members of the Board of Directors, and a board of canvassers appointed to take subscriptions of stock.

The officers of the company say that they have never had so eminent a set of gentlemen to confer with, and who entered more heartily into every arrangement for the completion of the road, and representing as they do the solid moneyed men of Harrison county.

We are gratified to say that there is now a better prospect for the early completion of the road than there has been at any time since the inception of the enterprise, and our citizens should extend a hearty welcome to our Cynthiana friends, and all work together for the success of the road. Now that the capital stock of the company has been increased we hope that those of our citizens who have not yet subscribed anything to the road will come forward and do so. We have a number of men in Montgomery county who are abundantly able to take stock in the road and who say hope it will be a success, who have never extended any material aid to it. The way to make a success of the enterprise is for these men to subscribe. If Harrison subscribes more than we do, of course the control of the road passes out of our hands, and if the people of Montgomery desire the control of the road to remain in their hands they must make up their minds to subscribe a majority of the stock, and if the road posses out of our hands into the control of others we have only ourselves to blame. We hope our citizens will consider these matters seriously, and make up their minds to extend to the enterprise at least a portion of their surplus means.

☞Two citizens of Fayette county Dr. Gordon and David Kent—have gotten themselves in a fix—or rather into jail—by knowing more about the Ku-Klux than they care to tell. These gentlemen were arraigned before Judge Stephenson, setting as an examination court, and refused to tell who brought young Dr. Eastin to the house of Dr. Gordon after he was wounded on the Ku-Klux raid in that county some two or three weeks ago. The court very properly sent the witnesses to jail to remain until they got into a humor to talk. The Judge pursued the only course that was left him, and he should keep them there until they reveal what they know about the midnight prowlers. If men who are looked upon as good citizens refuse to testify against the murderers and cutthroats, how will they ever be brought to justice? Judge Stephenson is doing exactly right, and we hope he will have the firmness to hold out until Messrs. Gordon and Kent tell all they know about this affair.

The New Coal Mine—Something about Coal in General and the Most Practicable Route for the Coal Road.

INDIAN CREEK SPLINT COAL BANK,
November 30, 1874.

W. T. HANLY:

Dear Sir—After three years of careful investigation and prospecting, I take occasion to give expression to some opinions I have been forced to admit, although not in accord with those who may have more experience and a greater amount of knowledge in the mineral and mining business than myself. It is a fact long ago settled that in Kentucky's "Appalachian" field coal and iron of superior quality and of exhaustless quantity does exist, although as yet but partially developed. Within the past few days it has been my fortune to open up and develop thoroughly a seam of superior splint coal of the remarkable thickness of twelve feet solid formation, having sunk a shaft to that depth to and through the coal. This remarkable deposit of coal I found on one of the tributaries of Indian creek, known as the Toland fork, not to exceed one and a half to two miles from the head of Hawkins' branch and Leatherwood fork of Indian creek, where I have a number of banks now open and in operation, ranging in thickness from 2½ to 3 feet, and one seam of cannel coal found yesterday while prospecting upon the property of Daniel Morrison, about half way between the large splint bank and the head of Hawkins' branch: At the Haunted Cave cliff, in a direct line from Hawkins' branch to the splint seam on Toland fork, in addition to the banks found and now open, there are a number of other seams I have struck, ranging from 2 to 3 feet in thickness, all of a similar grade as the Hawkins' branch coals, and in the event of the Coal Road's extension to Indian creek, or any of its tributaries, by this route would necessarily pass within a few feet of ten or fifteen seams of coal already found before reaching the mammoth splint bank on Toland fork, which in my opinion would be sufficient reason alone, and to every other reasonable mind, to induce the company to adopt this route as the most practicable ever yet spoken of. I speak knowingly when I make this assertion, and defy contradiction. Not that I am more interested in this route than any other spoken of, because I own in whole or in part all the lands from Hawkins' branch to the top of Beaver hill beyond Frenchburg on Indian creek and its tributaries, and in the event of its extension to Frenchburg, this route is certainly the most practicable for many reasons, that after having passed the large splint seam there is an unbroken ridge or divide to the Hathaway fork of Beaver, down which on an easy grade, you reach Frenchburg.—Another reason why this route should be adopted is that it intersects or taps all the tributaries of Indian Creek and the great coal, iron, and timber lands of Menifee, they being the nearest and first of any commercial value that can ever be reached by any road, no matter what way you go from Mt. Sterling, Lexington, or any other portion of central Kentucky. The Peter Trace route would equally interest and benefit my interest, as it would strike my lands centrally at the head of the middle fork, but this route cannot be practicable, from the fact that the seams of coal are thin and are located high in the mountains, above the lime stone that crops above any base line of road that could ever be built. This route and the timber on it is of no commercial value, as the greater portion has been cut off and sawed up years ago. By this route there would be heavier cuts, a greater distance to reach coal and timber, with double the distance of tunneling and a much heavier grade, than the Hawkins' branch route, and a useless expenditure of money necessary before reaching coal and timber. The Bull Fork route, although equally benificial to me and my interest, possesses the same disadvantages as that of the Peter Trase route and a greater distance to go before reaching coal and timber, thereby adding additional cost to unnecessary distance.

The object, as I understand, of the coal road company is to reach coal, iron and timber by the most practicable route, and for the least money. I am and have ever been satisfied in my own mind, with what knowledge of Geology I may have, (be it much or little) my practical experience for the past fifteen years alone would justify me in coming to this conclusion that the foot hills of the Cumberland mountains that extend to and gives out on the shores of Indian Creek, must have and do contain the many various kinds of coal known in the Cumberland range, whose spurs unbroken extend with their drainage down Indian creek to Red River. In the event that this route should be most practicable, and extend to Cumberland Gap, after reaching the head of Hawkins branch, through a low divide, you pass into and on the waters of Leatherwood fork of Indian Creek; in the event that such a route should be practicable, or a base line, after having gone through and passed beyond the Haunted cave range of mountains, you reach immediately coal, iron and timber in exhaustless quantities, where the axe of the woodsman has never fell a tree, and where nature has deposited all that man could ask. There is no argument strong enough, come from what source it may, to convince a sensible mind that nature has not made every effort expected for the location of a road. Timber of all the various kinds and of the best quality is here found in a state of nature. Iron ore, of the red and grey Hematite qualities, with a limestone formation, from which is made the famed strong car wheel iron, that is used extensively thoughtout the United States and in Europe, as being superior to all other grades now known.

The iron ore rests immediately upon the limestone formation, and directly above the ore you find the coal usually not more than three to four feet above, with a good quality of fire clay between the two formations.—These ores being of the red Hematite kind, of the Hanging Rock region, when smelted with charcoal and hot blast they yield a superior grade of neutral pig iron, that is equal to any iron found in the world. For all foundry purposes, when smelted with a coal blast, the gray and limestone ores yield the strong and famed car-wheel iron of the Vesuvius and Hecklly kinds that to-day bring more money than any other grades offered on the market in America. The Bath, Cottage, Estill and Red River furnaces produce the same kind of iron.—The analysis of the coals of my banks prove them to be identical with, if not superior to, the coals that are being extensively used at Ironton, Ohio, and at Ashland, Ky., as being eminently suitable for smelting the ores of the "Appalachian" fields of Kentucky.

Respectfully yours,
WOOD C. DOLLENS.

FIRE ENGINES.—The City Council on Wednesday last bought two of the "Great American Fire Extinguishers" for the use of the town, and we are informed that they will be received one day this week. We regard this as a very wise investment of the people's money, and we believe the action of the Council will be endorsed by our citizens. The Engines secured are better adapted for the use of towns and villages than any other, and the "Great American" is justly regarded as the best made.

☞The time for holding the Christian Sunday school has been changed from morning until the afternoon. This cause has been rendered necessary by the short mornings, and the impossibility to get the church sufficiently warmed in time in the morning.

☞Scudder, knowing that Davis, of the Maysville Republican, was down cast and despondent over the result of the recent elections, sent him a fine turkey for his thanksgiving dinner. but Davis having nothing else to go with the turkey took it to the Barcroft House and traded it for a "square meal."

☞Mr. Jno. Maupin, a week or two since, set out some very fine shade trees in front of his residence, and a few nights ago some miscreant took a hatchet and hacked them in a very disgraceful manner. A man mean enough to do such a dastardly act as this, would set fire to a man's house or steal acorns from a blind sow. Too cowardly to go before a man's face to resent any real or fancied wrong, he goes to work to destroy his property. If old Nick doesn't give him the hottest place he has in his dominions he will be very remiss in his duty.

☞Chiles, Bean & Trimble are in receipt of their Christmas stock, consisting of Raisins, Figs, Dates, Currants, Citron, Mince-meat, Nuts, Fancy Candies, &c., being the largest and most complete assortment of Fancy Groceries ever brought to this market. Housekeepers desiring to lay in a supply of good things for the Holidays should not fail to call on them. *

☞The county court proposes to give to the town ten feet off the front of the court house square if the town will remove the dirt and pave the street. We propose to the council to pass an ordinance prohibiting the hitching of horses there in case they accept the proposition.

☞Ten thousand hogs have been shipped from the stock pens in this city the present season. Forty car loads were shipped on Wednesday last. It is estimated that the hogs shipped from here would average in price $17 per head; total amount realized about $170,000.

☞The legless man gave a trapeze performance in this city on Wednesday last. A collection was taken up after the performance which resulted in our citizens being relieved of quite a number of shinplasters and nickels.

☞Thanksgiving day was generally observed in this city. Nearly all of the business houses were closed. Services were held at the Methodist and Episcopal churches.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY AND THE BIG SANDY RAILROAD.

MT. STERLING, Nov. 27, 1874.

EDITOR SENTINEL:—I must confess I was very much surprised at your lo-a' in last week's issue, in regard to the duty of Montgomery county towards the Big Sandy Rail Road. You seem to be unaware that our county, a year ago, brought suit for the road and enjoined the recording of the mortgage on it in our County Clerk's office, which undoubtedly would have bound us hand and foot, when at the same time both Fayette and Clark counties refused to take action of any kind, though entreated to do so

You forget that our county has had employed for near a year past Messrs. Apperson and Reid and W. H. Holt as its attorneys in the case, and that they have been actively engaged in it; that our County Judge met the representatives of Fayette and Clark at their first meeting in Winchester several weeks since, and that Judge Apperson, no longer ago than the 24th inst., made a trip to Lexington to consult with the attorneys for the two other counties.

Yes, sir, let our citizens understand that our County Judge, and in fact the whole County Court, are fully alive to our interest; that Montgomery county, and not Fayette or Clark, was the first to strike the blow to thwart the grandest swindle of the age—and to grasp by the bit the "iron horse"—and for which our worthy County Judge has received not a little censure for acting, as some thought, too hastily.

A CITIZEN.

THE APPELLATE CLERKSHIP.

In case an election is ordered for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, the many friends of Mr. Jno. Tucker in this county speak of presenting his name to the people as a candidate. Mr. Tucker was Clerk of the Montgomery Circuit Court for six years, and we think we can safely say that the county never had a better one. He is honest, attentive to his duties, labors under no disability, and if he should be selected he would poll a larger vote in this section than any Democrat in the State. Mr. Tucker is a young gentleman of good morals, and is as pure and spotless in his private life as he is upright and honorable and capable of serving the public Kentucky does not possess a man more fitted for the position than Mr. Tucker, and no one more popular where he is known.

☞Hogs are quoted in the Cincinnati markets at $7,35 to $7,75, according to quality.

☞We regret to have to announce the death of Mr. Samuel O. Johnson, druggist, of this city, which occurred on Tuesday night. He was a moral, upright young man, and was greatly loved by his associates and friends.

☞The vote on Congressmen in Illinois at the late election shows a Democratic majority of 13,603. The Democrats carried seven districts which the Republicans carried two years ago. The delegation stands twelve Democrats to seven Republicans.

☞Charles Travers Daniels, a native of Bath county, and formerly a lawyer at this place and Cynthiana, has left a good law practice in St. Louis to engage in the ministry of the Baptist Church.—[Paris Kentuckian.

Mr. Daniel was raised in this city. His father was for a number of years Postmaster in this place.

ORGANS AND MELODEONS.—We invite the attention to the card of Geo. A. Prince & Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., manufacturers of Organs and Melodeons. This is the oldest house in the country in its line, and their instruments among the very best.

☞Judge McManama is now after those persons who furnish transportation for concealed weapons. He has especially instructed the grand juries in his district on this point, and from the determination he evinces in the enforcement of the laws, it will not do for them to neglect their duty in the matter.

For all Female Complaints

Nothing equals Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a most powerful restorative tonic, also combining the most valuable nervine properties, especially adapting it to the wants of debilitated ladies suffering from weak back, inward fever, congestion, inflammation, or ulceration, or from nervousness, or neuralgic pains. Mr. G. W. Seymour, druggist, of Canton, N. Y., writes Dr. Pierce as follows: "The demand for your Favorite Prescription is wonderful, and one man stated to me that his wife had not done a day's work in five months, when she commenced taking your Favorite Prescription, took two bottles and is now on the third bottle, and is able to do her house work alone and milk fourteen cows twice a day." Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is sold by all dealers in medicines.

Sewing Machine Facts.

The Sewing Machine sales of last year, taken from sworn returns, show that the Singer Company sold 232,444. The table, which is too lengthy for publication, also show that the sales exceed those of any other company 113,154 machines. These figures are all the more remarkable for the reason that the sales of the principal companies in 1873 are less than their sales in the previous year, whereas the sales of the Singer has been largely increased.

"If the number sold of any one Sewing Machine be a criterion of its merits, the Singer carries off the palm."

A Valuable Medical Treatise.

Hostetter's United States Almanac for 1875, for distribution, GRATIS, throughout the United States, and all civilized countries of the Western Hemisphere, will be published about the first of January, in the English, German, French, Norwegian, Welch, Swedish, Holland, Bohemian and Spanish languages, and all who wish to understand the true philosophy of health should read and ponder the valuable suggestions it contains. In addition to an admirable medical treatise on the causes, prevention and cure of a great variety of diseases, it embraces a large amount of information interesting to the merchant, the mechanic, the miner, the farmer, the planter, the professional man; and the calculations have been made for such meridians and latitudes as are most suitable for a correct and comprehensive Nationa' Calendar.

The nature, uses, and extraordinary sanitary effects of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters the staple tonic and alterative of more than half the Christian world, are fully set forth in its pages, which are also interspersed with pictorial illustrations, valuable recipes for the household and farm, humorous anecdotes, and other instructive and amusing reading matter, original and selected. Among the Annuals to appear with the opening of the year, this will be one of the most useful and may be had for the asking. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood. The Bitters are sold in every city, town and village, and are extensively used throughout the entire civilized world.

"De Fust Original Man."

Breddern and Sisters: As dis is de fust ob my course ob lecters, I perpoze to commonse at de berry fust beginning. De fust question what stars in de face is dis: "Who is yer? whar did yer cum from at de start?" Now I'm gwine to discuss dis question in bofe scripteral and sientific pints in oppozed to de late Darwinian theorem. We is tole dat after de form becum wold den de good Lord made all de creepin things, and den de aniniles. Well den. What next? Dar must be somebody for to make dem wile beasts behave darselves. Now, I ask, is de monkey de man for de situashun? No, my hearers. He mout hab thowed coconuts at em till de cows come home, and dey wouldn't been wuf a cent. So much den fur dat pint.

But Mr. Darwin sez de fizzicle formashun is de same, an darfore riginal man was a baboon. Now, rite here, breddern, I take groun agin Mr. Darwin; an if you plese we'll fite de debble wid fire. Sciunce agin sciunce. Foller me close now, breddern, dis is de ticklish pint. If we is all monkeys, I ask in de name ob all dat is right and reasonable, whar is dat tail what ort ter belong to bofe speshies? I mean, my sisters, whar is dat longated continerishun ob de spinal vertiba ob de back bone—dat—dat prehensible extenshun ob de spinal collum what gibs de monkey de power to make a suspenshun railroad bridge ebry time he wants to cross de creek?

I tell you, my deer bredderns an sisters we hasn't got it; we neber has had it; an thank de Lord, we will neber be boddered wid it. But I must be broaf. Hopin dat deze remarks will hab de effect to make yu all men an wimmen tink more ob yerselves, I will cloze. But before Brudder Boless pisses de hat round, I will make de nouncement dat I will delibber de secund at dis place on de berry vitle subjec: "De primeble fust cauz ob de kullered man."

The Apple Dumpling.

The dumplin are about the natral size ov yure phist, made out ov dough, and filled with apples. They are served up with sum sweet-tasting liniment on them, and are az eazy to struggle with az a sugar-plum. They ain't so good kold as they ought to be. Kold dumplin and raw potato eat similar. I never et apple dumplin yet, without thanking the Lord for that one, and the landlady for another one. Four apple dumplins at one setting iz just about mi size. I wish I knu who invented theze kind-hearted balls, i would like to weep over his memory. Punkin pi and apple dumplin hav dun az much to civilize man az enny two missionarys that have ever lived.—Good vittles iz next to good morals enny how. Yu may talk about virtew as much as you pleze, yu kan't never inokulate a man with virtew first rate on an empty stummuck.

Giv a man four apple dumplins, with sum good kind ov ointment on them, and after he haz et them, and they hav settled down to hard pan, yu kan krawl up to him on either side with a dose of morality, or even some new kind of sope for taking spots out of clothes.—[Josh Billings.

Instantaneous Death.

Jerome Carden relates that eight reapers, who were eating their dinner under an oak tree, were all struck by the same flash of lightning, the explosion of which was learned far away. When some people passing by approached to see what had happened, they found the reapers, to all appearance, continuing their repast.—One still held his glass in his hand; another was in the act of putting a piece of bread into his mouth; a third had his hand in the dish. Death had come upon them suddenly, whilst in these positions, when the thunderbolt fell. Ten reapers, who had taken shelter under a hedge, were likewise kill altogether during a violent storm. Like those mentioned above, they had profited by this necessary suspension of labor to enjoy a frugal meal. A touching detail, related by the Rev. Mr Butler, who narrowly escaped being a victim to the same storm, shows with what rapidity the whole of this joyous group had been deprived of life. One of the unfortunate beings had a dog in his lap at the moment the lightning fell. Whilst he caressed the animal with one hand, with the other he offered it a piece of bread. Both the man and the dog were petrified, as it were, in this position. The paralyzed hand still held the piece of bread, and the expression on the animal's face seemed to say. "Give me some more; come, give me some more." To die with the rapidity of lightning is to die as rapidly as thought itself; for the flash which kills so quickly lasts a time as brief as that which but shows us the spoke of the wheel of a locomotive—as that which but enables us to see immovable in the air the ball which flies through darkness from the cannon's mouth.

WHAT HE THOUGHT OF IT.—In a very well-known town in Vermont there is a flourishing colony of Irish settlers who have cultivated the soil to some profit. Some of the number emigrated, a few years since, to seek their fortune elsewhere. One of them, returning for a visit, was making inquires as to his old friends; among them was one Jim Donnovan. "Ah! Ned, where is Jim Donnovan?" "Oh! sure, he has sittled down intirely, and is well off; but, bad luck to him, he went to Montreal and married a little Protestant girl." "Married what?" "A Protestant girl." "May the divil fly away with him! Why didn't he marry one of his own sex!"

"Writing poetry for the waste-basket," says an item maker, "is putting one's soul into words that burn."

Last Chance

FOR

AN EASY FORTUNE.

A postponement of the Fifth Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky has been so generally anticipated, and is so manifestly for the interest of all concerned, that it must meet the approval of all. The day is now absolutely fixed, and there will be no variation from the programme now announced. A sufficient number of tickets had been sold to have enabled us to have had a large drawing on the 31st July, but a short postponement was considered preferable to a partial drawing. Let it be borne in mind that is the last which will ever be given under this charter and by the present management.

That it will positively and unequivocally take place as anuounced on Monday, 30th November,

That the music will be the best the country affords, and that

21 Reasons Why

YOU SHOULD BUY A

MITCHELL WAGON

In preference to all others.

1. None but Experienced Workmen are employed in their construction.

2. None but the best Ohio, Indiana and Canada Hickory is used for Axels, and all other material of the best quality, seasoned from two to five years.

3. Both Lower and Top Box are ironed on top.

4. Tongue Mounds are double braced.

5 Double Coupling used prevents the wearing and weakening of the hind axel, by an iron coupling bolted to the hind axel bolster.

6 The Hind Gate you notice is double.

7. Bottoms are matched and painted, and have six supports, thereby securing the end from breaking when loading heavy weights.

8. The stakes and standard never get loose.

9. Bolster on Hay Wagons are ironed on top.

10. The spokes are driven in glue, and never get loose.

11. All the stakes are bolted in the bolster, and not driven in, as many are which soon come loose.

12. They are the lightest running and best proportioned wagon in the market.

13. They are neatest and best painted wagon in the market.

14. All the hubs are Dodge Mortised thereby producing a stronger wheel than a straight mortise.

15. Mr. Mitchell, who has had over forty-five years experience in building wagons, superintends their manufacture, which is a safe guarantee of a perfect wagon.

16. All persons who use the Mitchell will have no other.

17. We have sold twenty-six Mitchell wagons in two years, and the repairs have not cost us ten dollars in that time.

18. We guarantee all wagons free from flaws and warrant them twelve months.

19. The Iron on these wagons is of the best quality, and is heavier than found on other wagons, and each wagon is ironed and braced in the best possible manner.

20. The Thimble Skeins are the best made, being accurately made, containing better material, and have more strength. They never break, never get loose, and each axle of the best hickory.

21. Take the superiority into consideration and they are beyond a doubt the cheapest wagon in the market.

We invite every one to call and see these wagons before purchasing any other. We sell them on reasonable terms, and will make a liberal deduction for cash. We will also trade any of our Wagons for Wheat, Corn or Bacon.

Below we furnish a few names of gentlemen who are using this celebrated wagon, to whom we refer as to their superiority over all others.

Milton Stephens, Will. Ed. Jones, Sam. Hart, Mike Gibbons, Jos. Wilkerson, James Fortune, R. Stigall, Robert Scott, E. R. Hall, Will. Howard, Thos. Howard, Pat. Mack, Thos. Boone, Mr. Ringo, Menifee county, (2) J. J. Lantern, H. Gill, Bath county (2,) Ben. Perry, Bath county, H. P. Nichols, Bath county, T. H. Fox. A. A. Clark, Nat. Peters, Bath, Jas. W. Gatewood, Sid Pittman, Powell, Tom Hall Powell.

We have sold in the past five years several different makes, and find this to be the best and cheapest wagon for the farmers.

Complete Course of Study!

THE Twenty-first Annual Session of this Institute commences on Monday, 14th September. Early application should be made to the Principal, as the number of boarders is limited to twenty-four.

We are permitted to publish the following extract from a letter written by the Rev. J. W. Pratt, D. D., President of Central University, Richmond, Ky.

"I attended some of the ordinary daily class recitations in the Sayre Institute during the month of May. I was charmed with the whole aspect of things. It is hard to put upon a half sheet of note paper all that I could say in commendation of the method and quality of the teaching which seemed to me to characterize all the departments. The school is admirably managed, and has many valuable appliances. The enthusiasm of both teachers and scholars, the thoroughness of the work, the absence of all clap-trap, the beautiful order and quietude with which everything moved on, all these things taken together produced a most pleasing impression on me in regard to the Institute."

MEDICAL.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs in Bilious Diseases

Hair Vigor,

For restoring to Gray Hair its natural Vitality and Color.

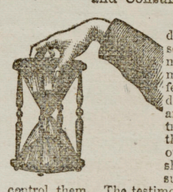

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. It soon restores faded or gray hair to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulated into activity, so that a new growth of hair is produced. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the scalp arrests and prevents the formation of dandruff, which is often so unsightly and offensive. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume.

Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping-Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Among the great discoveries of modern science, few are of more real value to mankind than this effectual remedy for all diseases of the Throat and Lungs. A vast trial of its virtues, throughout this and other countries, has shown that it does surely and effectually control them. The testimony of our best citizens, of all classes, establishes the fact, that CHERRY PECTORAL will and does relieve and cure the afflicting disorders of the Throat and Lungs beyond any other medicine. The most dangerous affections of the Pulmonary Organs yield to its power; and cases of Consumption, cured by this preparation, are publicly known, so remarkable as hardly to be believed, were they not proven beyond dispute. As a remedy, it is adequate, on which the public may rely for full protection. By curing Coughs, the forerunners of more serious disease, it saves unnumbered lives, and an amount of suffering not to be computed. It challenges trial, and convinces the most sceptical. Every family should keep it on hand as a protection against the early and unperceived attack of Pulmonary Affections, which are easily met at first, but which become incurable, and too often fatal, if neglected. Tender lungs need this defence; and it is unwise to be without it. As a safeguard to children, amid the distressing diseases which beset the Throat and Chest of childhood, CHERRY PECTORAL is invaluable; for, by its timely use, multitudes are rescued from premature graves, and saved to the love and affection centred on them. It acts speedily and surely against ordinary colds, securing sound and health-restoring sleep. No one will suffer troublesome Influenza and painful Bronchitis, when they know how easily they can be cured.

Originally the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, no cost or toil is spared in making every bottle in the utmost possible perfection. It may be confidently relied upon as possessing all the virtues it has ever exhibited, and capable of producing cures as memorable as the greatest it has ever effected.

LITERARY.

Prospectus for 1874--Seventh Year

THE ALDINE.

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

Not for Sale in Book or News Stores.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos, besides!

ART DEPARTMENT.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood-cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

The quarterly tinted plates for 1874 will be by Thos. Moran and J. D. Woodward.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorada picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory. The chromos are each worked from thirty distinct plates, and are in size (12x16) and appearance exact fac-similes of the originals.—The presentation of a worthy example of America's greatest landscape painter to the subscribers of THE ALDINE was a bold but peculiarly happy idea, and its successful realization is attested by the following testimonial, over the signature of Mr. Moran himself:

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 26, 1873.

Messrs. JAMES SUTTON & Co.—Gentlemen: I am delighted with the proofs in color of your chromos. They are wonderfully successful representations by mechanical practice of the original paintings. Very respectfully, [Signed,] THOS. MORAN.

These chromos are in every sense American. They are by an original American process, with material of American manufacture, from designs of American scenery by an American painter, and presented to subscribers to the first successful American Art Journal.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Rome," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$3 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free. For 50 cents extra the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person, wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser, will receive full and prompt information by applying to

HARPER'S MAGAZINE

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The ever-increasing circulation of this Excellent monthly proves its continued adaption to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well as entertainers of the public mind, for its vast popularity has been won by no appeal to stupid prejudices or depraved tastes.—Boston Globe.

The character which this Magazine possesses for variety, enterprise, artistic wealth and literary culture that has kept pace with, if it has not led the times, would cause its conductors to regard it with justifiable complacency.
